Dedication

Dr. Alvin H. M. Stonecipher

In gratitude for his tireless guidance and friendship, the class of 1961 dedicated this yearbook to Dr. Alvin H. M. Stonecipher, retired head of the Department of Foreign Languages.

Quiet and dignified, yet never aloof, Dr. Stonecipher's warm sense of humor and ready smile are indicative of his interest in the college and its students. His name can be found in the pages of Who's Who in America, yet to many community residents as well as students he is a close personal friend who gives freely of himself for another's spiritual and intellectual benefit. Only when so fine a friend and counselor is about to leave our campus do we realize the tremendous debt we owe to him and other leaders like him.

To Dr. Stonecipher we wish continued success and the best of everything life has to offer.

FOREWORD

"Growth of the whole individual" is the theme of a liberal education, and Lebanon Valley as a college of liberal arts aids the student by attempting to develop in him the power of independent thought and by improving progressively his moral, social, and physical character.

A liberal education is not narrow. It must be useful in establishing the student in the existing economic framework of the community, but it also sets a standard of breadth and depth to learning. Shaped by the desire to foster the highest human virtues, it urges the student to free himself from the tyranny of restricted learning.

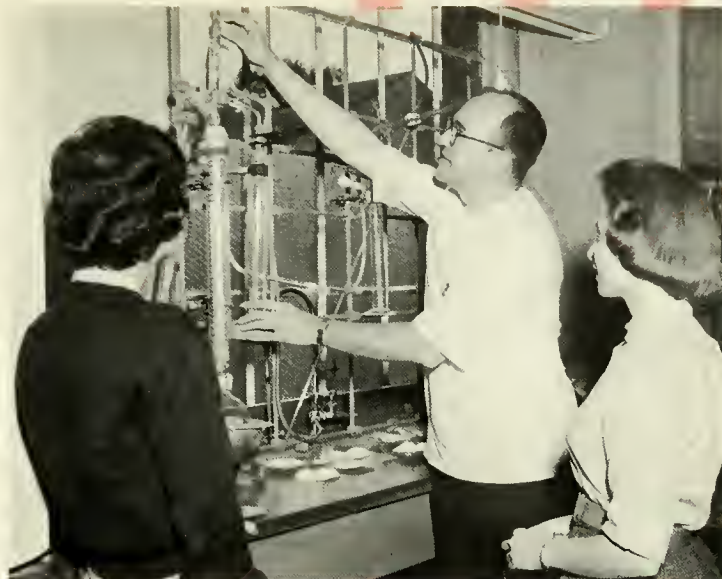

In intellectual growth, Lebanon Valley College endeavors to provide its students with a sturdy foundation of basic knowledge and training in specialized fields. In addition, organizations and teams offer opportunities to follow special interests out of the classroom and to gain social ease and physical coordination. "Establish your goals in these three areas," urged Dean Howard M. Kreitzer at the September, 1959 convocation service, "and then work diligently to reach them."

In this book, we present the different phases of individual growth at Lebanon Valley College for the year 1959 and '60.

The process of individual growth depends upon the vision and courage of those leaders who guide the untrained minds of students to a full realization of themselves and their duty in tomorrow's world. The future is contingent upon the conscientious devotion of such leaders to this responsibility.

Faculty

& Administration

President Frederick K. Miller

Dr. Frederick K. Miller was graduated from Lebanon Valley College in 1929 and received his A.M. degree from the University of Pennsylvania two years later. He went directly into high school teaching then returned to his Alma Mater as professor of history, from which position he was elevated to assistant to the president, Dr. Clyde Lynch. When the latter died in 1950, Dr. Miller was appointed acting president until, in November 1951, he was inaugurated as the twelfth president of Lebanon Valley College, in which capacity he has served this institution faithfully.

Dr. Miller has become a friend to all students through his understanding of their problems as a group and as individuals. Under his guidance, Lebanon Valley College continues to do its job in educating students for the future in the academic as well as the spiritual, social, and physical realms.

Chemistry

Chemistry students at Lebanon Valley College are vigorously schooled in the techniques and principles of modern chemistry. Coupled with a liberal arts education, this training prepares the student for a successful life both as a citizen and a scientist. The department provides students interested in the teaching profession an opportunity to study chemistry and the various techniques of teaching science. Adequate training is also provided for students interested in industrial work, the medical sciences, and advanced study in chemistry.

In addition to providing courses which cover well the various fields of chemistry, this department also offers the student much opportunity for individual experimentation and scientific thinking.

We at Lebanon Valley College are very proud of our chemistry department and the outstanding chemists it has produced, realizing full well that it is highly thought of in scientific circles.

Biology

The purpose of the biology department at Lebanon Valley College is to develop an appreciation of man's relation to his universe, to acquaint students with those fundamental facts necessary for the proper interpretation of the phenomena manifested by the living things with which they are surrounded, and to lay a broad foundation for specialization in professional courses in biology.

The courses are designed to prepare students for any vocation which is directly related to the biological sciences, including work in the various fields of medicine or the teaching of the biological sciences in high schools, as well as for preparing students for graduate work in colleges and universities.

In just this past year Lebanon Valley transferred the Biology department from the Administration Building to its newly renovated quarters in the Science Hall. The numerous research specimens are arranged attractively in several display cases. This, plus the creation of several very modern laboratories, makes the Valley's biology department one of high esteem among small colleges.

Francis H. Wilson, chairman; V. Earl Light and O. Pass Bollinger.

SCIENCES

Mathematics

This department gives the students interested in the mathematical sciences thorough training in both the classical and modern fields of mathematics. With such training the student is prepared for teaching mathematics on the high school level, for taking graduate work in this subject, or for accepting one of the many positions available in the business world where such mathematical knowledge is vitally needed and employed.

Much credit is due this department for its continual endeavor to better its curriculum and program, such endeavors being led by its chairman, Bernard Bissinger. Assisting Dr. Bissinger this year is Paul F. Henning, Jr. Robert J. Wagner, another member of the department's teaching staff, is on sabbatical leave this year while pursuing further studies at the University of Pennsylvania.

Paul F. Henning, Jr., Bernard Bissinger, chairman

Samuel O. Grimm, Jacob L. Rhodes, chairman, J. Robert O'Donnell.

Physics

The physics department aims to provide an introduction to the techniques and applications of physical science; to give students an insight into the behavior of non-living matter; to indicate the possible extent, as well as the limitations of our knowledge of the physical universe.

This division is able to fulfill its aims by being equipped with some of the most modern and advanced apparatus available to the teaching of the subjects included within its curriculum.

Not only does the physics department strive to train young men and women for various vocations which utilize the traditional fields of physical phenomena; but it also attempts to demonstrate to these students the potential available to mankind today through a study of the recent developments in nuclear and atomic physics.

Foreign Languages

The immediate aim of this department is to assist the student to acquire a working knowledge of the language or languages which he chooses to study. The ultimate aim is to encourage a broader understanding of the life and thought of other peoples.

In order to fulfill these aims the department offers instruction in the French, German, Greek, Latin, and Spanish languages.

It is the hope of this department that by importing to the student a broad basis in one or more of the languages offered, the student will be prepared to pursue a career where a thorough language background is required. Such vocations would include teaching foreign languages on the elementary and secondary school levels.

George H. Weydling, Ruth E. Butler, Donald E. Fields and Alvin M. Stanecipher, chairman. Absent: G. A. Richie.

English

The purpose of the Department of English is to afford students a vital contact with the literature of our language, and to assist them to write and speak effectively. The department endeavors to fulfill this purpose by offering many varied courses in its curriculum, courses in literature, poetry, drama, public speaking, composition, and language history.

In addition this department also has the responsibility of educating every college student in the humanities by tracing the developing mind of man and the growth of his sense of aesthetic and ethical values. Attempts are also made to show how developments in literature have been paralleled by similar developments in art and music.

George G. Struble, chairman, Theodore D. Keller, Mary V. Bowman, Anna D. Faber, and Jesse Mattack, Jr.

Music

SEATED: Ruth E. Bender. STANDING: D. Clark Carmean, R. Porter Campbell, James W. Thurmond, Frank W. Stachow, Robert W. Smith, chairman, and Thomas A. Lanese.

The aims of the Department of Music are to train artists, teachers, and supervisors; to teach music historically and aesthetically as an element of liberal culture and to offer courses that give a thorough and practical understanding of theoretical subjects.

Private instruction is given in instrumental and vocal music and the courses in music history and theory provide an intensive study of the literature of the best instrumental and vocal music. By participation in the various musical organizations sponsored by the Department — the College Band, the College Symphony Orchestra and various choral groups — students may enjoy unusual opportunities for practical experience.

Lebanon Valley is especially proud of its Music Department for it is held in high esteem among small colleges and by the National Association of Schools of Music. It is also approved by the Pennsylvania State Council of Education for the preparation of supervisors and teachers of music.

SEATED: E. Jaan Reeve, Marcia M. Pickwell, Geraldine H. Kurtz. STANDING: Harold Malsh, Reynalda Ravers, Pierce A. Getz, Alexander Crawford and William D. Fairlamb.

Social Sciences

The aim of the department of social science is to aid the student in acquiring knowledge in the field of social studies as well as to serve as a background for an objective study of mankind's activities, hoping that this research will assist the student in arriving at his own opinions; thus, promoting good citizenship.

The field of social sciences is divided into several specialized fields. The political science division aims to acquaint the student with the functions of government and current world affairs. History is the study of the past development of human societies and courses in the sociology department help to develop the student's understanding of our social structure and social relationships.

Ralph S. Shay, chairman; Elizabeth M. Geffen, history; Alex J. Fehr, political science; Alice M. Brumbaugh, sociology; John H. Fritz, history.

Economics

The study of the activities by which men attempt to produce or acquire scarce goods is known as economics. When an economy becomes complex and increases, it assumes the title of business. Our American economy is very expansive and much rapid progress is being made in introducing new products and more efficient methods of production. Even though the economy is complex and highly industrialized, there are as many opportunities as ever for men with energy, ideas, and ambition to organize enterprises. Therefore, this department aims to give Lebanon Valley College students a thorough training in the essential principles and fundamentals of business and economics. At the same time it offers sufficient electives to provide students preparing for careers, which will require an acquaintance with business procedures, a general cultural education.

C. F. Joseph Tam, Robert C. Riley, chairman.

Business

Religion and Philosophy

Seeking to orient the student to a Christian world through free and open inquiry, these departments offer basic foundations to those students preparing for the Christian ministry, the world mission field, the teaching of religion and philosophy, and other church vocations. Essentially, for all students, they attempt to develop skills for practical service in a local church or community, and to make Christian living an ideal goal.

Dr. Carl E. Ehrhart, chairman of the Philosophy Department; Dr. James O. Bemmesderfer, the Reverend Mr. Mark J. Hostetter, (Absent), instructors in the Department of Religion.

Psychology

In order to develop in the student an understanding and appreciation of the biological and environmental basis of human behavior and of the role of that behavior in adjustment, the liberal arts college has established a department of psychology. It is also intended that the courses in this division will foster the student's healthy adjustment through the objective application of psychological principles to problems related to personal, vocational and moral growth.

In order to provide first hand experience in the study of human behavior, research methods are analyzed through means of laboratory procedures. By employing free or controlled stimuli and response treatments, it is possible to become familiar with measures of learning, perception, memory, fatigue, motivation, thinking and reasoning.

Jean O. Love, chairman, Carroll M. Colgan.

The aim of the Education Department is to develop teachers who appreciate the value of the teaching profession.

The department presents courses to comply with certification in the elementary and secondary fields of the public schools. Professional hints concerning techniques of teaching as well as the principles of education are included in the curriculum in such courses as: Visual and Sensory Techniques or Principles of Guidance Organization and Administration.

A Pennsylvania Student Education Association and an Elementary Education Club are sponsored by this division.

Gilbert D. McKlveen, chairman, June M. Herr. Absent: Clyod H. Ebersole, William A. Botchelor.

Education

Ellis R. McCracken, chairman, Betty J. Bowman, Charles E. Pood.

Physical Education

"To provide an opportunity for qualified young people to develop their total personalities" is one of the main objectives of Lebanon Valley College. Recognizing that physical growth is a significant consequence in this development, the Physical Education Department attempts to encourage attitudes and habits of good total health; to develop the student's physical capacities and to provide activities which will enrich his leisure throughout life.

Besides supplying regular course instruction concerning biological needs and health conservation, the personnel of this department offer advanced instruction in the fundamental skills and practice of golf, hockey, basketball, tennis, wrestling, track, and baseball. It is their responsibility to arrange all the inter-collegiate athletic activities plus sponsoring an intramural program in which anyone can participate.

Savage Sophs and Frolicking Frosh

"Veni, vidi, vici," could be said of Julius Caesar, but not of an L.V.C. student of this year's Freshman Class. Although they came, they sowed, and they thought they had conquered, the fateful day of October 24, 1959, proved to be their Waterloo. But let's start from the beginning.

With their arrival on campus in September the freshmen soon found it necessary to withstand the traditional enemy of all college freshmen, the college sophomores, as the sophomores attempted to utilize that eternal and world-famous instrument of collegiate warfare, the Freshman Initiation Program. The freshmen, all too soon, however, organized themselves into a line of defense which even the Class of '62 could not penetrate, and for one of the few times in L.V.C. history a revolt was staged. It was certainly a joyous night for the freshmen that Monday evening, September 28, as they openly refused to cooperate with the sophomores, now doomed (temporarily) to stand by and watch as control was wrested from them. In a sense the Bastille of L.V.C. had been stormed.

Thus ended the sophomore's initiation program, over which some members of the class had labored long and hard. The frosh still had one battle to fight, however, a battle which would mean final victory — or loss, and on October 24, still confident, they marched down to the Quittie for the annual Tug-of-War with the sophomores. As the shores of the Quittie were exchanged for subsequent pulls, the tide of battle also changed. The frosh returned from the fray that day defeated, dejected, and wet. The Class of '62, defeated in the beginning, conquered in the end and returned carrying the victors' laurels.

Rah, rah, rah!

We're behind you boys. Let's win!

Bury those Albright Lions!

It's o woman s world.

The sophs prepre for the Sock Hop.

Mixed emotions down by the Quittie side.

Cool, man, cool!

To every student is granted the opportunity to branch out from the solid trunk of general basic knowledge for the development of different specialized talents and interests.

Drum Major — Fred Eshelman

Marching Band

A snappy command echoed across the field as the horns were whipped into position and a fanfare announced the entrance of the marching band. Under the direction of drill master William Nixon, the band was led through a series of spirited formations in the pre-game and half-time shows at each home football game by drum major Fred Eshelman.

With a contagious vitality and willingness to work, this year's edition of the Lebanon Valley College Marching Band drilled many long hours to create a precisioned, professional appearance, becoming an even more essential part of each gridiron contest. The energetic routines and lively marches were pleasing both to eye and ear, and added greatly to the fervor and excitement which helped build team morale and cheered the players to victory.

This organization, under the direction of Mrs. Geraldine Kurtz, offers ensemble experience both to proficient band personnel and to members of the student body who are just beginning to learn a brass or woodwind instrument. As a training ground for skill in fields of minor performance, the Girls' Band is a great asset to the department. Their annual Spring concert attests to the progress achieved by individuals as well as by the group as a whole.

With a vast reserve of the best in current literature, the members of the Concert Band, under the baton of Dr. James M. Thurmand, become acquainted with the finest works in the idiom as they prepare for the annual Spring Music Festival and concerts at Lancaster and in the Forum at Harrisburg. An augmented version of the marching band, this organization, one of the largest in the history of the college, is equally capable of playing either a rousing march or a Bach fugue, and provides music for such college functions as the May Day festivities.

Directed by Dr. James M. Thurmand and accompanied at the piano by Barbara McClean, the Choir also presented concerts at Harrisburg and Lancaster and is present at each Tuesday chapel service. For the tour, a special orchestra was selected to supply an accompaniment worthy of this group's high standards.

CHORUS

Comprised of all members of the music department plus other interested college students, this organization, directed by Mr. Reynoldo Rovers, presents concerts each year of the best in literature for this idiom by famous composers. The chorus is also heard each year along with the Concert Band and Symphony Orchestra during the Spring Music Festival. Chosen for this year's presentation was Brahms' "Requiem" with orchestra accompaniment.

The Lebanon Valley College Symphony Orchestra is heard in concerts of its own as well as in the Spring Festival along with the Concert Band and the Chorus. Comprised largely of music education students, this organization, directed by Mr. Thomas Lanese, also welcomes talented musicians from other departments of the college.

Miss Marjorie Peters, a junior in the music department, is this year's concert mistress, and leads the violin section, one of the largest in the group's history, through some of the finest music of both classical and contemporary composers. Concerts are designed to present variety and quality of material, in line with the department's desire to educate its students in every musical area.

Delta Tau Chi

Delta Tau Chi has its basis in Christian service and fellowship. Made up of pre-ministerial students, missionary students and those interested in other church vocations or active lay leadership, DTC joins with area churches in varied worship programs. Deputation teams with sermon and song venture forth on Sunday morning for a time of service, worship and laughter. Trips to homes give inspiration to both the students and hosts. Morning Prayers during the week provide a period for meditation as the college day begins. These functions offer a chance for experiences that will be useful in the future.

The fellowship among the members of Delta Tau Chi is a great aid in living a Christian life on campus. As is the purpose of this organization, much encouragement is to be had from knowing that others are confessing Jesus Christ in thought and deed. A life of dedication unto God; spreading good will among men; and raising ethical and moral standards are all fostered by the fellowship of this group.

The Student Christian Association is theoretically composed of all the students on campus and governed by a group of its more active students called the cabinet. Our campus organization is affiliated with the YMCA and YWCA on the national level. This year has seen the dedication of this group to wider outlook in world and personal affairs.

Each Wednesday night S.C.A. presents programs of varied content with the hope of meeting the interest of most of the students. This group firmly believes that nothing of importance can be excluded from Christian consideration. This has led to a deviation from orthodoxy and a greater understanding of the Christian life of the college student. Two week-end retreats with spiritual emphasis and two week-ends of social events are a part of the S.C.A. program, along with dormitory devotions and Campus Chest.

Each year the cabinet returns early to help with freshman orientation. This is the first step toward promoting friendliness and goodwill among the student body. The programs following throughout the year are aimed at helping the students to live in Christian harmony yet maintain their own personal beliefs.

Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities.

"Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities," an annual publication of distinguished students, offers one of the highest honors possible for a Lebanon Valley College student.

The award includes a certificate or recognition, benefits of the free placement service which is operated by the organization, and the privilege of wearing the organization's key besides a listing in the publication for the year in which the students are selected.

This year Lebanon Valley was allowed a quota of eleven students, the number being based on the size of the school, who were chosen by the college deans. These students are selected on the basis of securing a well-rounded representation of the various college departments and of leadership in important campus organizations.

Faculty-Student Council

Through these representatives of various campus organizations, a closer understanding between students and faculty is brought about. The advisers and faculty representatives include the Dean of Women, the Dean of Men, and the College Chaplain.

Among some of the numerous council's duties are a partial distribution of the Student Activities Fee, planning of the year's calendar, publication of the L-Book, and the presentation of suggestions and views of the student body to the proper authorities.

R.W.S.G.A., which is the Resident Women's Student Government Association, is composed of one freshman, two sophomore, three junior, and four senior representatives plus hall presidents and student dorm proctors. The demerit system, effective this year for the first time, has been a step forward in student government.

This group and the Men's Senate sponsor the Christmas Dinner Dance, and, along with W.C.C., they plan Gender Weekend.

Men's Senate

The student government organization of resident men is composed of one freshman, two sophomore, three junior, and five senior representatives that help to maintain order and decorum among male students living on campus.

It sponsors the interdorm track meet, Underclassmen's Day and, along with R.W.S.G.A., it helps to put on the Christmas Dinner Dance.

Because the day students have problems that differ somewhat from those of the resident students, this council is up to take care of those arising among the female students. Among its activities are Gander Weekend, planned in cooperation with R.W.S.G.A.; the Valentine's Dance, a spring party, and a Christmas party with help from the Men's Day Student Congress; a Christmas party for orphans in co-operation with the Elementary Education Club; and the sponsoring of a booth in the County Fair.

Men's Day Student Congress

R. Owens, president; D. Barbini, L. Hall, secretary-treasurer; A. Kreiser, faculty-student council representative, L. Strait, vice-president. Absent: J. Kantner, K. Light, R. Androzzi, freshman representative.

Taking care of problems that arise among the male day students, the Men's Day Student Congress, along with the Women's Cammuter Council, sponsor a Valentine Dance, this year with a surprise fashion show. It helps the Elementary Education Club with a Christmas party for the orphan children. In November these men held a hayride and in May they plan to give a graduating party for all day students.

Chemistry Club

The Chemistry Club tries to provide a program that will widen each member's background technically and socially.

Among its technical activities are field trips to various industries and to graduate schools of chemistry, and programs given by outside speakers at the meetings all of which enable students to gain a better knowledge of what types of work are involved in the field of chemistry.

Socially, the club tries to provide a feeling of fellowship by sponsoring such activities as "Monte Carlo Night," and the annual "Dinner Dance" and spring picnic.

Several responsibilities of the club include helping in the "Science for a Day" program and writing articles for their paper, "Filtrates and Residues."

As the national honorary biological society, the Alpha Zeta Chapter of Beta Beta Beta tries to create interest in the field of biology for all students.

Some of its activities include programs given by outside speakers, showing biological films, helping out in the "Science for a Day" program, and sponsoring an annual banquet.

Provisional membership is open to those interested in biology who have maintained a "B" average or above in forty per cent of their grades after one semester of residence. For active membership, one must have received a grade of "B" or above in eighty per cent of his biological courses (3) and at least in fifty per cent of all subjects, and must be at least a fourth semester student.

Pi Gamma Mu

This group composes the Pennsylvania Mu (Lebanon Valley) Chapter of the national social science honor society. Two purposes are set forth by this society. First, membership is given as a symbol of recognition for outstanding work in the social sciences. Secondly, this chapter tries to promote

Psychology Club

Anyone interested in the various fields of psychology are welcome members of the Psychology Club under the direction of advisor Dr. Love. The monthly meetings included activities which were of the most interest to the members. Guest speakers included Mr. Briggs Salls, who spoke on the "Rehabilitation of Chronic Mental Patients," and Mrs. Wedel, sociologist, who gave an informative discussion on Religion and Psychology. Plans also included a field trip to the Warnersville Pennsylvania State Hospital.

Pol Sci Club

To promote a greater interest with the problems concerning politics is the goal of the Political Science Club.

The club trains its members in parliamentary procedure and committee for the conference of the inter-collegiate government. Held each spring in Harrisburg, the conference is not only attended by Lebanon Valley students, but by similar groups from other colleges in Pennsylvania. Other activities of the club include the selling of basketball programs at home games, the sponsoring of two banquets annually, each representing one of the major political parties, and the presentation of timely panel discussions.

Led by Miss Peggy Garber, President, and Dr. McKlveen and Dr. Ebersole, advisors, the George D. Gossard Chapter of the student PSEA had a gala year this year. Besides participating in County Fair, a Christmas party and a Get-Acquainted Party as usual, L.V.C.'s PSEA was host to the annual State Convention held this year on April 8 and 9. This is because L.V.C. boasts the state presidency vested in Peggy Garber. Our chapter also participated this year in the Fourth Annual Leadership Conference in September at Allenberry by sending three student members.

The club features motion pictures, speakers, and field trips to local industrial concerns. Their main trip this year was to the glass works in Corning, New York. They also sponsored a hayride.

Alpha Phi Omega

Lebanon Valley's new Service Fraternity is currently in the process of obtaining its charter in the national organization. As one of their service projects, the organization has set up a campus wide Civil Defense program. Last year they sponsored a dance and the "Ugliest Man on Campus" contest. This chapter is open to all male students who have had previous scouting training and who still desire to maintain a service relationship with the scouting movement.

French Club

Last April the French Club, under the advisory capacity of Miss Butler, undertook a trip to grade schools there. This year they again participated in County Fair and sold Christmas Cards. Under the leadership of President Jim Boyle, a Freshman, they hold their monthly meetings at the home of Dr. George Struble with the purpose of achieving understanding of the culture, civilization, and language of France. Each year this club celebrates the Christmas Season by joining with the local Adult French Club in caroling in French.

Actual work, however, began last September when the staff, through cooperation and perseverance, systematically met their deadlines on the various sections of the publication. By their efforts, they have gained valuable experience in publication techniques as well as in the methodology of obtaining unity and balance throughout the book.

Lebanon Valley College's dramatic society affords an opportunity to gain experience in acting, directing, staging, and in other facets of theatrical productions. Open to all students, the club provides unusually interesting entertainment at its meetings as well as at its various additional events each year such as theatrical picnics and trips to the Harrisburg Community Theatre. This year Wig and Buckle has given television performances entitled "The World and the Theatre" in conjunction with the college program "Lebanon Valley Presents." In October of this school year an evening of three one-act plays was presented under the directorship of Mr. James L. Kline and Mr. Theodore D. Keller. For the first time, this year Wig and Buckle has become a member of the National Dramatic Fraternity, Alpha Psi Omega.

"How handsome you are," says S. Smith as W. Nixon, H. Vanderbach, V. Yelton, W. Richter, and A. Apple await the final appraisal by the director.

The cast in Jean Giraudoux's The Apollo of Belloc are shown in those last minute per-stage scenes. Other plays which were presented on October 23 and 24, 1959 are Edno St. Vincent Millay's Aria de Copo and Thornton Wilder's The Hoppy Journey.

L. Gluyos, F. Neid-

Gardner, J. Gerry.

Leading the students in cheers during the football and basketball seasons, these five encourage pep and vigor during the games and support for our team. This year they started by leading a successful parade through Annville which was the beginning of the pep rally and bonfire before our first home football game. Much of the campus spirit is due to their enthusiastic leadership.

L-Club

The L-Club is composed of athletes who have received their letters from the Director of Athletics for participation in one or more of the varsity sports. In order to be eligible for membership, a sports participant must meet the requirements set up by the Athletic Council for a varsity award.

The highlights of the year include selling "chapel seats" to unsuspecting freshmen and the L-Club dance where the newly elected Homecoming Queen is crowned. An annual sports' banquet is held in the spring at which the coveted jockets and letters are given to the outstanding athletes of the year.

The Women's Athletic Association supplies the impetus for any sports minded girl. Individual and group sports are available to all. Shirley Angle and the other officers and leaders, under the direction of Miss Bowman, have provided a well-rounded schedule of activities.

Basketball and hockey are offered on the intercollegiate level. Also, an extensive program of intramural activities is offered. By the point system girls are able to earn awards in any of the sports. The freshman hike, the Halloween dance, the initiation hike and the banquet, additional highlights of the year, all help make W.A.A. a very active club.

Ski Club

A new club on the campus is the Ski Club, organized last year by some ski enthusiasts under the assistance of Mr. Ned Linta. The club was able at that time to take advantage of the closeness of the Blue Ridge Ski Area and many new skiers took lessons. Later in the season trips were taken to the Poconos, and some of the members went as far as Mt. Snow, Vermont, to spend their semester vacation.

This year, with the help of Miss Bowman, the club hopes to expand and encourage more trips, with the hope of a future ski weekend.

At the end of the Korean War the Legionnaires were formed to provide good co-operation and to help the veterans in college corners. Composed of the men who have faithfully served their country, the "Vets" comprise one of the truly outstanding organizations on our campus. Easily recognized with their grey jackets and long beards, the Legionnaires are a symbol to us of the type of brotherhood that prevails when men are united with an interminable bond.

Social activities during the school year include the Legionnaires Ball and the familiar Saturday night dances after our home basketball games. On Armistice Day, the "Vets" sponsor an all-campus program that often proves enlightening.

Inter-Society Council

Last spring the presidents of the above five social societies met to discuss the possibilities of an Inter-Society Council to promote more social life on the campus and better relations among the clubs. Other aims of this council are to: provide new and original social functions, create more enthusiasm for social affairs of each of the five groups, make the College Lounge the campus center, and strengthen the college motto of friendship.

The Inter-Society Council, which represents approximately two hundred and fifty students, is composed of one representative, the president, and one alternate from each organization. The government of the council consists of a chairman and a secretary-treasurer with each society having equal voting power. Although the council is not under a constitution or the supervision of an adviser, all decisions are those of the societies and their individual memberships. Major decisions require one hundred per cent of the societies.

The organization began early in the fall to plan for their big dance "Autumn Leaves" on November 21. Introduced this year was a new success, the Frammis, an informal social get-together with a jazz combo and refreshments. With the backing of the organizations and the support of the student body, this council may help provide a new social era on the campus.

One of the two women's social societies on campus is Delta Lambda Sigma, more popularly known as Delphian. A typical Delphian year is filled with many making projects and social affairs, some in conjunction with their brother society, Kalo.

A car wash, Lebanon Valley contemporary cords, Easter eggs, and hat shows are the major fund raising projects. Orphanage parties, informal get-togethers, and K-D weekend, the high spot of the year are the activities shared with Kalo.

In November many girls were initiated formally at a tea in the Lounge. The theme for rush week was an owl, and many "whoos" and strange shapes could be seen on the campus that day. With the Delphian room as the hub, the spokes of friendship, co-operation, love and fun radiate to all members.

K Λ Σ

Under the capable leadership of Sydney Danfelt, Kappa Lambda Sigma has realized new goals and has set the precedent for many other organizations in the past year. The busy and highly successful year of Kappa Lambda Sigma consisted of such events as the acclaimed Jazz Concert; K-D weekend, including a formal dance at Allenberry; K-D Kickoff Dance, where Doug Rass and Carol Branson reigned as King and Queen respectively.

Kappa Lambda Sigma employed numerous projects including the sale of mugs, pretzels, and Christmas cards. A party was held at the Janestown Orphanage and was enjoyed by all. The publications of the society's newspaper, the Kapp La Sig were unique and entertaining to the campus.

The year was concluded with the annual Stag Banquet at which the twenty-three men who were about to graduate and who have been responsible for much of Kappa Lambda Sigma's success were honored.

goddess of Clio.

Clio sponsored several dances throughout the year. In cooperation with Philo, their brother society, the girls held a ship-wreck party on Gander Weekend. They also planned the Clio-Philo dinner dance. Jointly with the other four societies, through the Inter-Society Council, they helped in planning the Inter-Society Dance.

Philo, older brother of the Valley societies, shows unmistakable signs of rebirth of vigor as it celebrates its ninety-second year. This fraternal organization has realized the value of friendship, good-will, and co-operation, and has fostered the standards of true comradeship which are indispensable for a well-rounded life.

The social schedule of Phi Lambda Sigma included such notable events as the annual Alumni-Varsity basketball game; Philo-Clio weekend; and extensive, highly successful intramural program; and finally a stag banquet to complete a year that was beneficial and rewarding for each member.

Knights of the Valley

The Knights of the Valley, serving this year under President Les Holstein, have furthered their purpose of promoting fellowship and good will. The Knights have proven their worth by their contribution to all campus activities and by awarding two academic scholarships to deserving students.

Every year the Knights present the Chuck Maston Memorial Award to the man chosen as the outstanding athlete.

Last year Bill DeLiberty was the recipient of this award. The Knights also present an award to the outstanding athlete in every varsity sport.

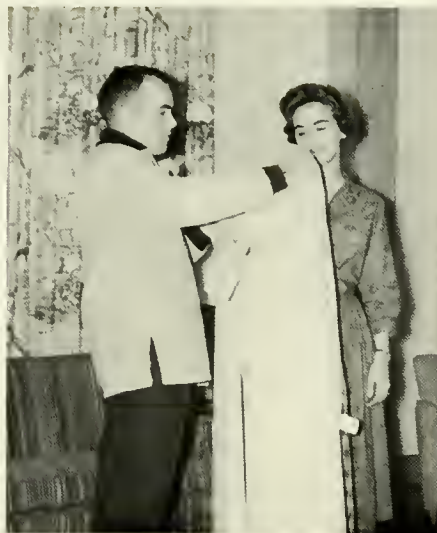

In addition to supervising the Gordon-Davis laundry service, the Knights of the Valley receive strong backing from their well organized alumni. The Knights' Alumni Dinner Dance is held every spring and the Annual dinner for alumni on Home Coming Day.

FALL 1959 was the time of at least two memorable returns: Return to Peyton Place by Grace Metalious and the return to the campus of L.V.C. The former is of no concern here, but the latter has "intimately touched" all of us. Will we ever forget the return to old familiar faces of friends, the classrooms, Hot Dog Frank's, signing out, and the book store, which along with the business office educates every student in the inflationary conditions of our nation's economic system? Yes, it was truly a return "en masse," and one from which some have not yet recovered.

DAY was here again, incorporating Homecoming and Underclassmen's Day into one "really big" shaw. Early October 21, 1959, alumni returned to the campus, and the freshmen and sophomores marched down to the Quittie for the annual tug-of-war. At the victorious football game was featured the high-stepping L.V.C. Marching Band. The day witnessed open house in all dorms, three one-act plays in Engle Hall, and the crowning of Queen Sue at the dance which climaxed the day's activities. What kind of a day had it been? A day like any other day, filled with those events which . . .

Months have passed since the eventful tug-of-war, and the sophomores no longer retain the spail of the victor which dictates that the freshmen continue wearing their dinks and ties. Today peace and tranquillity exist between the sophomores and the freshmen — the freshmen now "aged" since their arrival at LV and they are largely indistinguishable from any upperclassman. Oh, perhaps they still retain an air of spriteness which the upperclassmen lack, but to quote a favorite warning, "Cheer up, freshman! The worst is yet to come."

Charge! The Frosh have just begun to fight.

Pull sophs! Pull! Keep that rhythm, pull!!!! PULL!

When the frosh come marching in . . .

One, two, three, kick.

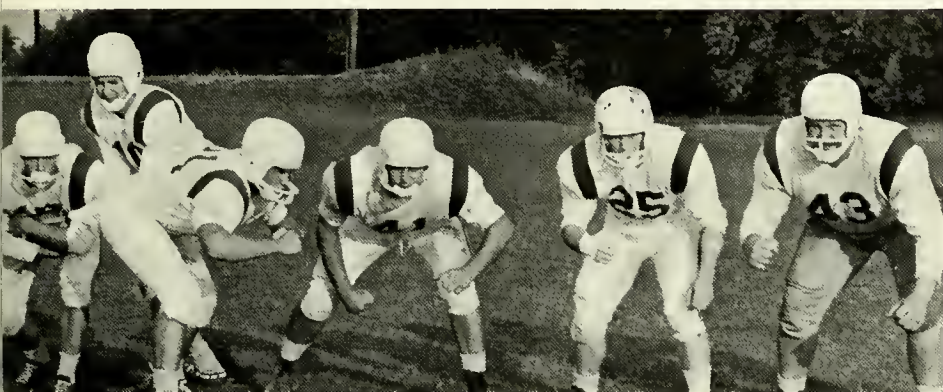

Ready — and charge!!

Welcome, alumni, and come often!

TIME goes on and so does college study, but every student somehow manages to find a few minutes for those activities which do nothing toward bettering him politically, religiously, economically, and which even have doubtful social and psychological benefits. Outstanding are the parties: birthday parties, holiday parties, engagement parties and those held just for the sake of having a party. Then, too, there is always those hilarious Skeeve nights when all formality and decorum is thrown to the wind and our hallowed dining hall is entered by strange other-worldly creatures. But not all of the student's "spare" (?) time is consumed in such non-constructive activities. There is always enough minutes left to make County Fair and Science-for-a-Day successfully fulfill their purposes.

preceded by a harried rush toward completion of term papers, lab experiments, and book reports which should have been completed before the holidays. But somehow everyone (almost) manages to fulfill his academic responsibilities and to prepare himself for the final exam period, during which time neither professor nor student "lives" — they merely exist.

However, finals haven't killed anyone yet, and so most of the students return to begin anew. As that old adage of the entertainment world says, "The show must go on!" and so awa-a-a-ay we go!

SONG OF SPRING

was one of the highlights of the season drawing many alumni, parents, and friends to witness the activities, even though the weather left something to be desired. The order of the day included sports demonstrations of golf, archery, and the trampoline, dancing by the freshman and sophomore girls under direction of student choreographers, and the traditional May Pole Dance performed by junior girls and their escorts. The day was climaxed with the crowning of May Queen Mary Beaver after the procession of her lovely attendants. That evening the Junior-Senior Prom was held in the gymnasium with the atmosphere of Manhattan towers, completing the May Day events, a holiday celebrated around the world.

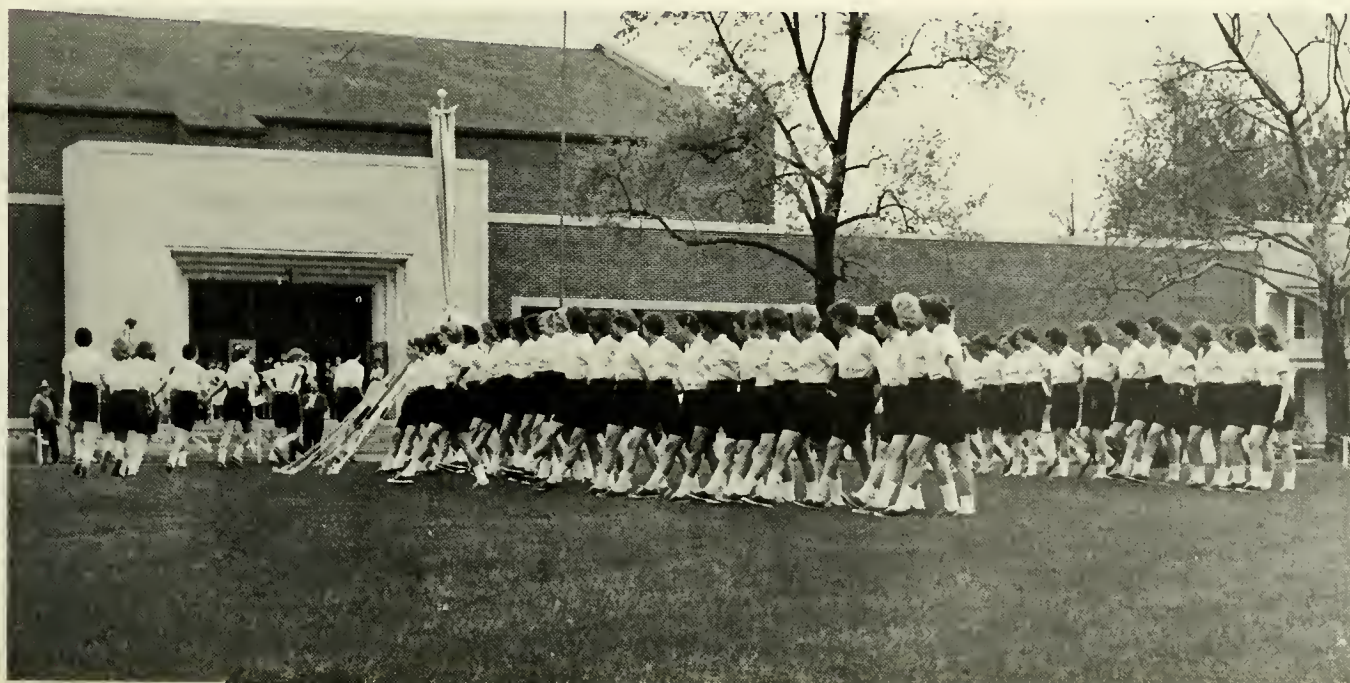

May Queen Mary Beaver receives her crown from Janet Blank Rismiller, May Queen 1958.

SPRINGTIME —

Will you remember? Jeanette MacDonald asked this question in Sigmund Romberg's Maytime, but here at L.V.C. we ask another: Can we ever forget it? As warm weather arrives we wrestle with the soul-searching concern of what to do: take a walk, go swimming, play frisby, or study? Although the latter has the least chance of winning our loyalties, it must eventually steal some of our time.

Spring is also the time for Don Cupid to awaken from his winter nap (if he ever went to sleep!), and come out on our campus walks and benches. Can we ever forget these days of hustle, bustle, and "cuss-el" as we scurry about attending parties, field trips, and finishing another semester? Even more important, would we ever want to forget them?

A young man's thoughts turn to —?

There's always room for one more.

mission fulfilled! That day and destination which every senior set out four years ago to reach has finally arrived. All preparations are completed, and it only remains for senior and professor to don academic gowns, march down the aisle of the college church for Baccalaureate in the morning and across the center of campus for Commencement in the afternoon. To the freshman this brings the thought, "Oh, if I can only make it."; to the sophomore, "Two down and two to go!"; to the junior, "Next year that will be me up there — I hope."; and to the senior it means the successful completion of four years' preparation for a profession or graduate school. Regardless of class standing, Graduation is a memorable occasion for every Lebanon Valley student.

"Congratulations, Frank!" says well-wishing President Miller.

The graduated seniors led by Merritt Capenhaver and Edno Cormean file past faculty and friends.

A dream comes true as seniors wait for their diplomas.

Closely interrelated are the physical and mental well-being of the individual; neither can one be separated from the other. The oak must receive both sunlight and rainfall; deprive it of either and the abundance of the other will not stem its decay.

This year's team posted one of the best records in recent years, that of 5 wins and 3 losses. The coaches and players are to be commended on the fine showing they made in the 1959 season. Although the underdog in most of their games the team rose to the occasion and startled all observers by their fine play. Especially worthy of praise are the games with Muhlenberg and Maravian where they rose above all odds and gained well-earned upsets and victories. Over all the team must be commended for their fine play and sportsmanship.

Basketball

The 11—9 record gained by the L.V.C. Dutchmen was the best since the 1955-56 season of 13—8. Coach George R. Marquette, for the first time in many years, had height to work with. Hank Van de Water, 6'4" center, was the mainstay of the team. He was Valley's high scorer for the season. Quirina Goncalves, although he only played the first half of the season, used 6'5" frame to accumulate rebounds and also was a consistently high scorer. Hi Fitzgerald and Steve Wisler, both 6'3" were also front men who contributed greatly to the scoring and rebounding tasks. In the backcourt team co-captains Barry Skaler and Sam Butz plus Art Forstater were the stars. All three possess a number of deadly shots and are expert ball handlers. Glen Coates, Allie Kohler, and Les Holstein backed them up and could be relied on to keep Valley in the game. Among the many outstanding games played by Lebanon Valley was the 74—64 victory over Drexel, the team that later went on to win the MASCAC title. Also, upsets over Gettysburg and Moravian were pleasing victories for Valley followers.

Junior Varsity Basketball

Coach George Mayerhaffer's J.V. team has again showed the good record that it usually does. They finished the season with 9 wins and 6 losses. They displayed the same spirit and determination of the Varsity, and it is gratifying to see them keep up the standards of Lebanon Valley. In following the J.V. team one can notice the potential players bud and develop into future varsity men. Among the leading players who show varsity potential are Tom Knapp, Ken Showers, Ken Girard, Lee Copeland, Gene Stambach, and Joe Hooper. The addition of these players plus those returning should give varsity coach George Marquette his strangest team in a good many years.

Wrestling

The 1959-60 wrestling team under Coach Charles Poad had its best season since its formation three years ago. The team ended with a 2-7-1 record.

This year Lebanon Valley was proud to be host for the Middle Atlantic States Collegiate Athletic Conference on March 4 and 5 in which twenty schools participated. We are also proud that Ken Longenecker captured the heavyweight championship title. The victories of Borry Keinard and Captain Dave Miller enabled L.V. to place ninth in the tournament with a score of eighteen points.

Other winners throughout the season were Jay Kreider and Paul Longreen. Five new wrestlers were added to the squad, and although losing our heavyweight champion, there is promise for a successful team in the future.

The Lebanon Valley baseball team under Coach Frank Etchberger completed the 1959 season with a record of 4 wins and 9 losses. Aside from the win and loss column, the Dutchmen performed well, providing their ardent followers with many exciting moments. The team was led by the fine all around playing of Co-Captain Bill DeLiberty and Art Ford. The hustle and team spirit displayed by Karl Wesolowski and Bob Stull brought to them the honor of being co-captains of their teammates for the 1960 baseball season. The over-all fine play and sportsmanship by the team has made them worthy of being L.V.C. representatives.

Under the coaching and support of Dr. Richie, the L.V.C. tennis team turned in a highly successful season of 6 wins and 3 losses. This is a distinctive record for this relatively new team and they are to be commended for their fine play and representation of all "Flying Dutchmen."

Looking forward into 1960, the Dutchmen are expecting another highly successful season under the leadership of Captain Howard Good. All members except Phil Niosi will be returning.

Track

The Dutchmen finished the season with a 2-4 record and broke two of the school records previously set. Les Holstein topped Aubrey Kershner's mark of 25 points in one meet by gaining a total of 26 points in seven events against Ursinus. Another of the season's outstanding accomplishments was Dick Harper's pole vault record of 11 feet 6 inches, topping the old mark of 11 feet. Les Holstein, another eleven-footer, was closely following Harper, and together they constituted a "one-two punch" in this event. Dave Mulholland was the high jumper whose consistently good jumps gained him many firsts.

The Dutchmen were especially strong in the sprints with Les Holstein, Vern Magnuson, and Don Zechman as the triple-threat performers, all of them running 10.2 centuries. The low hurdles were ably handled by Les Holstein and Vern Magnuson while Holstein also dominated the high hurdle event. Although the mile and two mile runs were the Valley weakness, the determination of Carl Rife, in his first year of track participation, promises that LV will improve in the future.

In the shot put Fred Meiselman and Ken Longenecker were a hard team to beat, Meiselman at 43 feet and Longenecker at 42 feet. They both tossed the discus, and here again one-two was the rule.

Many new freshmen participated, and with every point-maker returning next year, the 1960 track and field team should register the best record in the sport's history at Lebanon Valley.

Hockey

Wham - - - crash! There's another goal for L.V.C.! That's L.V.C.'s powerful rough and ready girls' hockey team "the sluggers," who completed the season with a record of two wins, three ties, and one loss.

Through the efficient coaching of Miss Bowman and under the capable leadership of co-captains Shirley Angle and Nancy O. DeLiberty, the girls played with lots of enthusiasm and showed good playing.

Once in a while things became dangerous, as sticks and ball flew through the air. Twice Barb Horst was hit on the forehead, and Rosalie Wida, our goalie, did a great job, especially when she stopped a fast ball with her hand.

Next year, to our dismay, we'll be losing a few good players: Shirley Angle who held backfield as left fullback — and held it well; Jackie Simes, who had the position of right wing which kept her busy running up and down the field; Nancy O. DeLiberty, our powerful center half; and our right inner who had lots of luck - - - Barb Horst.

On the whole, our players did some terrific playing and showed good team work. This year we added some very promising freshman players and we'll be looking forward to some good playing in the future.

Despite the handicaps of torn ligaments, sprained ankles, and sprained fingers, the girls' basketball team managed to make their contenders a bit uneasy on more than one occasion before the final canto was over.

In compiling the record for the year, the team, under the coaching of Miss Bowman, scored two victories and four losses. The Volleyites inaugurated their season by defeating the Alumni 33-24. In the next game with Millersville, the girls took the victory 32-25. As for the debit side of the ledger, Lebanon Valley then dropped games to Elizabethtown and Shippensburg. In the most thrilling, heart-breaking game of the year, the Blue and White representatives ended their season by losing to Millersville 33-32 on their return game.

Leading the team in scoring this year was Ellie Black, averaging sixteen points a game, with Eileen Gluyas behind her, averaging eleven points a game. Many of the freshmen on the team showed much promise for the years to come.

The editorial staff of the 1961 Quittapahilla wishes to express its appreciation to the many persons upon whom rested a large share of the work and responsibility involved in the publication of this annual. Thank-you's are due our photographers from Harpel's Studio, Lebanon, Pa., all those at the American Yearbook Company in Hannibal, Mo., and also the members of the academic community who so generously cooperated with staff workers in the completion of their tasks. This assistance was of inestimable value in compiling an accurate profile of 1961 and the forces and events which have shaped the course of Lebanon Valley College.

If this world's friends might see but once
What some poor man may often feel,
Glory, and gold, and crowns, and thrones,
They would soon quit, and learn to kneel.

My dew, my dew! my early love,
My soul's bright food, Thy absence kills!
Hover not long, eternal Dove!
Life without Thee is loose, and spills.

For Thy eternal, living wells
None stain'd or wither'd shall come near:
A fresh, immortal green there dwells,
And spotless white is all the wear.

Dear secret greenness! nurs'd below
Tempests and winds, and winter-nights,
Vex'd not that but One sees thee grow:
That One made all these lesser lights.

If those bright joys He singly sheds
On thee, were all met in one crown,
Both sun and stars would hide their heads,
And moons, though full, would get them down.

Then bless thy secret growth, nor catch
At noise, but thrive unseen and dumb
Keep clean, bear fruit, earn life, and watch
Till the white-winged reapers come!

— Henry Vaughan
